

Restaurant Reopening Program Overview

Heed Health offers a variety of programs and services with the goal of getting you and your employees back to work. As restaurants begin to reopen outdoor seating and reduced capacity dining, we understand that this comes with significant challenges. We at Heed are here to help you navigate the process and screen your staff and patrons to both comply with regulation and ensure a safe reopening in the context of COVID-19.

Program highlights:

- One-time screening for patrons upon entering
- Temperature screening with facial recognition for staff
- Onsite testing for active infection and antibody
- Workplace signage, instructions, and training
- Daily messages sent – via text message or email – to all working staff with a link to complete a survey asking about symptoms and potential exposure to COVID-19
- Full Access to the Heed team 7 days a week
- Ability to test any staff member who screens positive
- A dedicated Nurse practitioner to follow-up with staff who screen positive – those exhibiting possible symptoms or those exposed to COVID-19
- Ability to report results by individual restaurant location
- Data stored securely with reports generated for owner and/or managers to keep you compliant
